Johnson, Johnson Gain Off; Gov. Jester Wins

By Associated Press
Johnson increased his margin slightly in the U. S. Senate race according to the tabulation by the Texas Election Bureau at 12 noon today. A total of 1,016,106 votes had been counted.

The report was from 249 counties, 119 complete.

The latest count showed Stevenson with 40.3 per cent. The count was Stevenson, 409,272; Lyndon Johnson, 339,853; George Peddy, 9,185.

The governor's race was won most from the barrier. Incumbent Beauford Jester started good and won handily. He polled in Sunday night's returns 521,168 votes or a percentage of 53.84.

Evans, March 1st, was State Rep. Roger Q. Evans with 22,545 votes or a percentage of 22.7%.

Evans, a veteran state legislator from Denison and head of the Texas delegation of Foreign Wars, was most of his campaigning through radio addresses, made his position clear as he bowed out of the race.

The people of Texas are capable of making up their own minds," he said simply, "on how to vote in the second primary."

He said in a statement at Houston, "I shall not publicly announce my position or do anything that could be construed as an effort to influence the votes of the fine, independent Texas citizens who honored me with their confidence. I support."

It was not certain when Stevenson and Johnson were ready to square off to fight over Peddy's votes. Both said they were going to Washington first to attend the special session of congress.

Johnson, who used a helicopter to cover the campaign trail, asserted:

"Both See Victory."

"I think Johnson polled his strength in the first primary," he said.

he's been gaining the last five weeks, and if that keeps up the next five weeks, I'll win."

Neither got a helping hand or a friendly nod from Peddy, who dropped out of the race when re-election showed he was running no better than third and was certain to finish in that position.

MUMPS

Never, it seems, can my battered heart be. From something or other to fret about, free. With one worry over, another comes on. A joy that's enduring is granted to none. From the crest of delight I am flung in the dumps; Now Ellen Elizabeth's down with the mumps.

I ought to be merry with grandchildren four. You'd think with such treasures my troubles were o'er. But it seems every bliss is attended with woe, And heartache is something we're destined to know. On her neck, left and right, there are two ugly lumps; Now Ellen Elizabeth's down with the mumps.

Since childhood with various ills is beset, Always here or the other some sickness will get. If it isn't the measles that puts one to bed, The chickenpox comes, with the spots flaming red. And why this has to be, every grandfather stumps. Now Ellen Elizabeth's down with the mumps.

tude and courage are worthy of the strong young nation that produces it. In such bold pians lies hope.

HOW TO STOP THE FIGHTING

The United Nations now must decide whether or not it is willing to use force to prevent the warring in Palestine.

Some think of international force in terms of diplomatic and economic sanctions.

In the case of Palestine such measures doubtless would eventually work.

If that area and the Arab states were effectively isolated, by complete co-operation of all the other nations, sooner or later Jews and Arabs would have to stop fighting, for want of the supplies of warfare.

They would have to come to terms for lifting of the sanctions, as the region could not support a satisfactory economy without external trade.

A quicker method would be the use of arms to physically subdue the warring armies and hold them in check while a settlement should be worked out. Arms doubtless would be needed to enforce acceptance of the settlement. The use of sanctions would be the more costly in money and in time; the use of arms might be more costly in human lives. No one can say which might involve the less suffering.

QUESTION: Is it the obligation of the United Nations to halt the fighting in Palestine, and evolve a peaceful settlement of the dispute. If it cannot be done without force, then force must be put to use.

PERSHING

In the present generation the name of no other living military man was so wreathed in legend as that of General John J. Pershing. Long after he became a figure of retired seclusion, Army men recalled tales of his prowess and his humanity.

His death vacates a rank which will not be filled for many a day.

Hungary rules it's a crime to listen to the "Voice of America." There have been moments when Congress thought so, too.

Who said there was anything in a name? Two of the sweetest ball players in the big league for 1948 are Cleveland's Lemon and Cincinnati's Sauer.

Attorneys Study New Actions In Annexation Case

Several arcs of Corsicana legal circles sat down to mull Fridays opinion holding the city of Corsicana's boundary extension ordinances invalid arrived here. Decision in the case was handed down Thursday.

Copies were received by Julius C. Jacobs, attorney, who won the case for the city in the trial court. Doyle Pevchouse and T. S. Dawson and Dawson, who won it in the higher court; the district clerk's office and the office of District Judge A. P. Mays whose findings in the case were reversed.

The city went ahead with its legal machinery to take the case to the Texas Supreme Court, anticipating that the Waco court would overrule a formal motion for rehearing.

City Handed Setback.

The Waco court held the city was "acting beyond the scope of its authority" when it passed two ordinances last December extending the city limits to the north and west. The court declared the ordinances null and void, reversed Judge Mays' findings and rendered judgment in favor of the appellants, granting injunctive relief staying the extension ordinances.

The court did not hold the city could not annex the areas—but it held strongly the city couldn't do it as it did, by ordinance.

This was in absolute contrast to Judge Mays' holding that the city by its charter was authorized to use the ordinance means of extending the city limits.

Mr. Hubert T. Braselton, who was in West Texas Thursday when the decision was handed down, was back at the city hall Friday morning.

He said he had no comment to make on the decision, other than that the city would carry it as far as possible in the courts.

He did wonder, he said, why the court waited so long to hand down its decision on the final session before summer recess.

QUOTES and NOTES

The passing of John Pershing gives emphasis to the story of a street which once for a little while bore his name.

It is the story of King William street, the cradle of San Antonio's industrialism, and it is told by Dr. Hinga of the Houston Chronicle in the current issue of the Texas Parade.

King William Street has seen most a century come and go, but for a time during the hysteria of World War I it was known as Pershing street. It still might have borne the name, except that San Antonio had already a Pershing street, and the tangle in mail induced the city fathers to revert to the earlier name.

The city went ahead with its legal machinery to take the case to the Texas Supreme Court, anticipating that the Waco court would overrule a formal motion for rehearing.

ALL DOCTORS, PARENTS ARE URGED TO LEARN FACILITIES AVAILABLE TO COMBAT POLIO

Every physician and every parent should become thoroughly acquainted with the facilities, free and otherwise available in the community for the diagnosis, treatment and follow-up services for infantile paralysis, according to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"With parents all over the country rests the responsibility," states a foundation booklet, "for seeing that everything that can be done is done to safeguard the community in which they live from the perils of poliomyelitis."

All Get Treatment

Each year the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis produces its "unveiling" campaign. Sufficient money has been provided to assure adequate treatment for infantile paralysis patients in need of help. One half of the money that is raised by the March of Dimes remains in the county, and the other half goes to the national headquarters to finance its nationwide programs of research, education and aid to communities experiencing an epidemic. The local funds of the national foundation are made available to the community through its chapters, visually established on a county basis.

Corsicana Ousted By Longview, 10-5 In Legion Play

Longview won over the Corsicana American Legion nine, 10-5 here at Territo Park Friday afternoon to put the locals out of the running in the state eliminations of the junior baseball race.

It was Longview's second win in the two out of three series, the first of which the East Texans won by a 15-0 count early this week in Longview.

"Once again a group of Corsicana High School boys and girls have reached the point for which they have been striving for four years. We who compose the summer graduating class of 1948, are the biggest summer class in recent years, perhaps the biggest one ever to graduate. We have completed our requirements for graduation, and we are proud to have realized this aim."

We are glad to have you here parents who have made it possible and who have helped us in ways, and friends who have urged us by your friendship to be happy in the celebration of our graduation, and we are pleased that we are to enjoy it with us.

Look back over our four years in school, we see the initiation afforded us, the football field, the band or on the campus, the dual development of our school, the great things which are leading a better life.

Let us make this a better and useful world in which to

we leave C.H.S. and enter the great out-of-school world.

It will start life anew with new and acquaintances. Some of us will be successful, while others

Believe It Or Not, Contributors May Actually Get Some Money Back From Centennial Fund Since Not All Used

Of course his sounds very silly, and you're going to really believe it, but you're going to get some money back—maybe a small part.

When you get the returning mail and a little check pops out and smiles up at you, there is no need to keel over and die maybe from a heart attack.

It's that 1948 Corsicana Centennial celebration again!

It is still surprising people.

Mayor Hubert T. Braselton, head of the Corsicana Centennial Commission, and Herman Brown, secretary, sat down Saturday to decide what to do with a little surplus of money.

It was revealed that the Corsicana Centennial celebration was so much of a success that even being rained out two nights didn't drown it out.

The local team, coached by J. H. Compton and managed by A. L. Williams, played good ball during the series, but both games saw Longview with a distinct edge.

Brown said Saturday that of the $5,000 requested $3,200 was given. Of this amount there remains $861, which is expected to drop to about $800 when a few more little bills are paid off.

Mayor Braselton has indicated he wants the surplus returned to those who financed the celebration, even though each would get only

IN AND OUT OF SERVICE

First Sergeant James S. Ford, of Purdon, who was formerly serving with the U. S. Army 47th Ordnance Group in the Philippines, has returned to the United States for discharge from active duty, it was announced by the Public Information Office of Headquarters, Philippines-Ryukyu Command, in Manila.

Sgt. Ford left on board the Army transport General Haven, which sailed from Manila on June 30. He will report to Camp Stoneman, Calif., upon arrival in San Francisco, for separation from military service.

Hubert Gene Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Reynolds, Route 1, Streetman, Texas, enlisted in the United States navy for a three year enlistment according to Chief Machinists Mate Tom Powers.

Reynolds is now stationed at the naval training center, San Diego, Calif.

Winfred Elton Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thompson, Route 2, Streetman, enlisted in the United States navy for a three year enlistment and is now stationed at the naval training center, San Diego, Calif., for his recruit training.

There will be no more applicants accepted in the navy for the remainder of July. Starting August 1, the navy will accept a limited number of applicants for enlistment until the August quota is filled. Chief Machinist's Mate Tom Powers, the local navy recruiter, will continue processing those men who want to enlist in the navy and those who qualify will go on a waiting list. Due to the heavy enlistments in the navy for the month of July and the naval training centers being flooded and unable to absorb such a tremendous increase, the navy will fill its quota from a waiting list of applicants.

Lunch will be served at noon. The rally will close at 3:30 p.m. In charge of the registration Thursday morning will be Mrs. Elton Skinner of Purdon and Mrs. Eddie Armstrong of Emhouse.
